We are a locally focused leader of initial teacher training, working in partnership with the University of Roehampton, supporting the transformation of high calibre recruits into excellent teachers, committed to the achievement of all pupils.

YOUR FUTURE

Are you interested in training to teach? If so, our school-based training courses, in partnership with the University of Roehampton, give you the opportunity to train at a university with an excellent pedigree in teacher education, whilst being embedded in a local partner schools.

You will combine research-based subject pedagogy from Roehampton University with practical, hands-on experience with expert colleagues in one of our well-established partner schools.

We offer a one year course for QTS with a PGCE (M level) in partnership with the University of Roehampton.

We have an excellent employment record and our programme provides superb preparation for the Early Career Framework (ECF).

WHY TRAIN WITH US?

The London West Alliance has extensive expertise and experience in teacher training. Our partner schools are stimulating and diverse environments in which to train, where children, staff and our trainee teachers feel valued and supported.

Our training routes are open to graduates with a first class or second class honours degree. We welcome applications from career changers and graduates from university.

We are particularly experienced in training suitably qualified teaching assistants or support staff already employed by a school who wish to become teachers.

THE FIRST STEPS TO YOUR FUTURE IN TEACHING

As a successful applicant, you will be offered an induction visit to your placement school to prepare you for the start of your course in September.

Throughout the academic year, your central training will take place on Wednesdays at the University of Roehampton. For the remaining four days of each week you will be developing your practice in your placement school where you will be assigned a trained subject mentor and supervised by a professional coordinating mentor. You will also have a subject specialist tutor from Roehampton University.

In the spring term you will benefit from a contrastive teaching placement at one of our other partner schools.

All of our partner schools have comprehensive intakes and you will gain experience of working with young people from all backgrounds and abilities. You will also have access to post-16 learners in at least one of your placements, if you are on an 11-16 programme; as well as some KS3 experience if on a 14 -19 programme.
